“ So sorry for your loss, but I know all of us have sweet memories of him in happier times remembered. He was always sweet and kind to me for all the years he was my father-in-law. Rest in peace. Fondly Remembered , Betty Mulholland

“ Nia remembers how tickled he would be to show off the tricks Fluffy, his poodle, could perform. Hard to know who was more entertained, "Cowboy" or his audience.

“ Nia has always called him "Cowboy" and to look at his picture here, it is easy to see why. He was rarely seen without his hat. One Sunday, when Janice and her family lived in Frankfort, I was driving in my powerless Chevette from Lexington to Frankfort, and I see a white sedan barreling up the interstate behind me. It is going so fast I believe it to be an unmarked police car on a high speed chase. Soon the car overtakes and passes me so quickly I might as well have been idling. In that millisecond blur of a moment as the car passes me, I recognize the car as a white Ford LTD and recognize the hatted profile of my Grandpa Pope! Not everyone can say their grandfather blew them off the interstate. I literally ate his dust that day!

“ When I think of my impression of him growing up, I remember him laughing. He had a rich, hearty laugh, and found many things amusing, especially the "tricks" his grandchildren could perform for his entertainment. He liked to tease his grandchildren and he laughed when ever he "got" one up on them. Many Sundays I remember watching Mutual of Omaha's Wild Kingdom with Marlon Perkins or Jacques Cousteau on the living room floor of his home in London.
