“ I’ve dreaded this day for some time now. 😞 Daisy was not only my best elementary school teacher, but my favorite as well—and my friend. She never failed to encourage me in my quest for my college degrees, and was second only to my mother, in pride, when I did so. RIP, special, beloved lady—you served ALL your students well and will always be remembered fondly! 🌹 🙏 💔

“ I remember Daisy so well. She taught my Mother & Father at Sasser school. They all loved her. It's hard to imagine how young she was at this time. This would have been in the 1940's. Dad would tell how they would have recess & Daisy would come out & play with them. They built some kind of slide & they would take turns sliding down a hill. In later years Mom & Dad would attend a reunion each Summer. That's when I got to meet Daisy. Such a sweet, pretty, petite woman. Such a gracious & beautiful lady. Sending my prayers to her family. What a wonderful life lived.
