“ I don't have any pictures to share but I thank you all that posted some here. Phoebe was my Grand Aunt, my Mamaw's baby sister. I only remember being with her once, although I'm sure I was more than that as a child. About 20 years ago my sister and I stopped in to visit her. She was so gracious in letting us in and telling us stories about her childhood and a few about our Mamaw Zora. I will always remember her laughter telling about her brother Oakley. I am reminded again how different the experiences of the youngest in the family are from those of the eldest. My heart goes out to her daughter Carol and grandkids Johnny, Connie, Clifford and Clinton and all the rest of her family that mourn her passing. RIP Aunt Phoebe.

“ Phebia was a good woman who worked hard all of her life. She was so proud to accept that she needed any help from the people who loved her. But the people who truly loved her would not let her push them away.

They saw the need, We saw the need and we took action. She was treated with kindness and gentleness and love and she Gave it back tenfold in return.

She was precious to me and has been all my life, I will always love her and I will miss her until she wakes up again in God's resurrection.

I will be standing there waiting for her to wake up as well as waiting on my father to wake up and my husband to wake up. It will be an awesome reunion and it won't be long now.

Clean house down here Lord Jesus and let's get on with the real life!

Grandma's birthday,

I think it was the 102 year old birthday, and Cliff, Johnny, Amanda and myself were there to spend it with her. In fact, it's kinda like my husband said, "why bother to come and see me when I'm dead, if you didn't care enough to come and see me when I was still alive?" I realize that people are busy, but no one has been busy this year. Not saying that I blame anyone but time is too short to wait on the things that matter most to us. You can always make money, but you can never buy back time. Time is the most precious thing that you can ever spend with anyone that you care about.
