“ My precious, intelligent, funny, complex cousin.
Oh how I will miss our talks, debates on scripture, antiques, Fenton glass, albums and you name it, we ran the gambit didn't we!
I'll miss you my confidant and buddy and the girls will miss their “Sammy Sung.”

Hug daddy and mommy for me and give “Little Dooder” a kiss on the head now that your reunited with him as he crossed the Rainbow Bridge to meet his precious master and friend.

You ended every phone call to me with “I just wanted to call and see how you guys are, I didn't know,”

I'm most positive I don't know more than I do know cuz, but this I know for sure, when I feel a soft breeze or see a beautiful Cardinal, I will know an angel is near me and it will be you.

You were so easy to love. I'll miss you, yep, I love you too.

“ There are too many memories to list here. I remember when you were born, I even faked being sick so I could stay home and be the first to see you. One of my favorite memories was of you, my husband Terry and myself sitting out by a fire talking all night. The stories you told still brings a smile to my face. You were always there for me, no matter what was going on. I have loved you, your entire life. I will miss you the rest of mine. Rest in peace, little brother. I love you. 💕💕
