“ Shab,

You were always the one I could go to for comfort and kindness no matter how great the chaos and darkness that enveloped our family. You listened to the angst in my stories and offered sensible advice and understanding You even let me wear some of your beautiful clothes- an amazing gift to me. I hated the 3 dresses that constituted my own wardrobe—hand-me-downs from aunt Lou’s kids that had been washed so many times the colors had faded and the once delicately sewn stitching loose and torn from the cloth. I always loved you so. You will be in this lost heart forever.
