“ I sent this to Teddy a month to the day of his passing. Someone once told me to find a best friend I could suffer with and I used to think that sounded sad. Then life happened, and I finally understood what that meant. Friendship is not just who eats lunch with you or grabs a soda with, it is Who holds you when you are drowning and then stays to help you build something out of the mess. That is the kind of person who does not just make your life better. They help you survive it.... ”

Thank you Teddy for all you pulled me through.... I love you and miss you.
